Why do we Oil and Stone?

In New York, "oil and stone" (or chip seal) is a cost-effective road resurfacing method. Municipalities and private contractors apply a layer of liquid asphalt followed by crushed stone. This seals the underlying pavement, prevents water damage, and extends the road's lifespan for a fraction of the cost of repaving.

Think of not sealing your driveway or waxing a tile floor, not painting or sealing your deck. Oil and Stoning is a way to preserve the roads for a longer life span.
